RESS AND RADIO:

sports season in full swing, let me welcome you to Chapel Hill. We are proud to introduce the 1949-50 edition of the University of North Carolina basketball team, and hope that this survey will be of assistance to you.

As always, the Sports News Division of the University News Bureau is at your service. Our usual procedure of limiting space for coverage of home basketball games must be in effect again this season due to the lack of facilities, but we shall endeavor to accommodate you at all times. Please let us know in sufficient time when you are coming. You may pick up your tickets at 207-C Woollen Gymnasium before game time.

Day or night, Sundays or holidays, please feel free to call for what you need in the way of additional information, special coverage, glosses and mats.

Many thanks to all representatives of the press and radio for your considerations and cooperation in the past. In 1950 we are eagerly looking forward to serving you and working with you once again. Please come to Chapel Hill often and we'll do our best to make your visit a successful and pleasant one.

Sincerely,

JAKE WADE,
Sports News Director,

The Prospects

Often, even when skies are bright, coaches of athletic teams paint gloomy pictures for press and public. Seems to be an old gymnasium custom. That is why, ordinarily, you can discount a great deal of what the professors have to say about prospects.

But, friends, when Coach Tom Scott of the University of North Carolina basketball team proclaims that the outlook this season is dark, very dark, he ain't kidding. He's not using one of those famous crying towels. He's giving you the McCoy.

The White Phantoms, no world beaters last season, lost three men off that squad: Dan Nyimicz. Coy Carson and Rip Ryan. Nyimicz was awarded the Foy Roberson medal last winter for contributing most in teamwork to the squad. He was a very valuable man. And Carson was merely the leading scorer in the Southern Conference.

All other old hands are back, including Nemo Nearman, Hugo Kappler, and Charlie Thorne (ineligible before Christmas) and the old hands are the team this season. No varsity talent from last season's freshman squad is apparent.

In addition to the talent shortage, injuries crippled the squad at the season's outset. Nearman, Kappler and John Tsantes were banged up, in and out of action. The Phantoms turned back Elon and Richmond but lost to Virginia Tech, Lenoir Rhyne and George Washington in one of the poorest Carolina cage getaways in years.

They should be better down the stretch. Thorne a small but busy workman, will strengthen the cast considerably. Kappler, a player of great potentialities, should do fine work, when he really gets on the beam. Nearman, elected captain just before the season opened, led the team in scoring in the early games but fell down on his free throws. When he gets his poise from the foul line, Nemo likely will be much improved.

The squad has good height in Kappler and Tsantes, the starting forwards, each 6-2, and towers at center with Nearman at 6-6. Howard Deasy, a good outside shot, is 6-4 as one of the guard starters. Thorne will be at the other guard

Hal Ferraro is the top forward reserve. Benton Bennett fills in for Nearman at center and should see a lot of action. Bill White, a starter while Thorne was ineligible, is the number one guard reserve.

While this is a team with definite limitations. the players work together harmoniously and have the spirit to spring a few surprises along the way Coach Scott always has a smooth working team and this one should be no exception.

The Coaches

TOM SCOTT (Head Coach): Friendly Tom Scott is beginning his fourth year as head basketball coach at North Carolina. During this time he has established himself not only as a highly competent mentor, but as one of the most able and affable men at Woollen Gymnasium in taking care of other chores.

Tom came to Carolina from Missouri State Teachers after four years in the Navy as a Lieutenant. His record at Missouri was outstanding, resulting in his being offered the coaching post here. His teams won M.I.A.A. Conference championships four years out of five. In five years his teams lost only five Conference games. And during those five years all his teams were selected as representatives in the National Intercollegiates. His team defeated the University of Kansas in 1939, the year Kansas won the Western NCAA Championship. It won the Oklahoma City Tournament by defeating such basketball powerhouses as Oklahoma A. & M., Texas, S. M. U., and Tulsa. His teams were never defeated by Missouri Valley teams.

Started coaching in Kansas high schools, then moved up to head coach at Concordia College in Morehead, Minn., where he stayed two years. Then he went to Central Missouri State Teacher's College, where he compiled an excellent four-year record before Navy duty called.

His first Carolina team (the '46-'47 squad) won 19 of 27 games. In his second year, his team won its first 12 games before being stopped, and the Tar Heels finished out that season with a 20-7 record. In 1947 the White Phantoms went to the finals of the Southern Conference in Durham, losing to N. C. State by 50-48. The following two years the Phantoms lost in the semi finals to the same strong State team.

CLYDE E. (Pete) MULLIS (Assistant Coach): Pretty small for a basketball player, nevertheless, Pete was a varsity star at Chapel Hill from 1934 through 1938. Since that time he's been affiliated with the University's Physical Education plant in one way or another. He's an associate professor now and is a popular instructor in Physical Education. He has doubled as assistant coach for the past several years.

Started playing the game at an early age. A native of Charlotte, he learned to make up for his height with long outside shots and expert ball handling on midget and junior teams around his home town. Starred for four years on the Charlotte Central high school team before coming to Carolina and making a name for himself in the collegiate basketball world.

Despite his dimunitive size, Pete is a big wheel in Woollen Gym affairs. He's married, has three children—all girls—and likes to hunt. One of the boys who likes to shoot the breeze.

Freshman Outlook

"Our freshman basketball prospects are the best in the last four years." Coach Tom Scott said early this season.

"We have no sensational height on the frosh squad but they are all above average height and several of them should work fine along with Deasy, Kappler and Thorne on next year's aggregation," Coach Scott continued.

Last year's most talked about North Carolina high school star, Jippy Carter, a 6-4 center from Charlotte, and Harold Maddie, a Bronx, N. Y., 6-4 center just out of the service, head the list at the pivot position. Carter was all-state last year and the high scorer in the state tournament. Maddie is a clever ball handler and a pretty good point maker.

Ernie Schwarz, of Philadelphia; Thomas Gaines, of Jamestown, N. C., and Jack Wallace of Elkin, W. Va., head the forward prospects. Schwarz has played a great deal of high school and city league basketball and is a good one-hand shooter from the outside. He is 6-4 and has used his height in jump shots from close in to the basket. Gaines was an All-Eastern North Carolina star last season and is a good prospect at forward. He, also, is 6-4. Wallace, another 6-4 boy, made all-state in West Virginia his junior year, then transferred to Mercersburg academy in Pennsylvania where he played two more years.

Vince Grimaldi, a teammate of Schwarz in Philadelphia; Wayne Harpold, a veteran of high school and service ball from West Virginia; and Bob Phillips, who played with Chapel Hill high school last season, top the guard candidates. Grimaldi is a good ball handler and good outside shot. Harpold is an exceptionally good defensive man and can shoot from outside. Phillips has looked good in early season games and is cnsidered a fine varsity prspect.

Cooper, of Raleigh, a guard; and Mitchell, a forward, of Oxford, both played basketball at Darlington prep and are expected to see much action with the frosh.
